

FACIONS DRAW UP FOR FINAL NOTE ON RAIL BILL

Warning Given on Poisoned Stuffed Olives

SIX BADGER CITIES GET ORDERS FROM CHICAGO HOUSE

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF FOOD AND DAIRIES
SOUNDS CALL.

SALES RECALLED

Distributor Instructs Salesmen to Withdraw Shipments.

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Feb. 21.—Warning that poisoned stuffed olives had been shipped by a Chicago wholesale house to dealers in six towns of eight states was issued today by J. J. O'Brien, Illinois state superintendent of food and dairies. In Wisconsin six towns are listed as follows:
Arcadia, Oak Grove, Beaver Dam, Madison, Port Atkinson, and Richland Center.

Other states included in the list are New York, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Montana, Nebraska, and Kansas.

Olives to Be Withdrawn
The distributor has instructed his salesmen in all states to call on customers and instruct them to withdraw the olives from sale immediately.

The olives are infected with bacillus botulinus, a form of poison which has caused a number of deaths in several states.

It is stated that the olives were found to be infected with the bacillus from a small jar reported to have been found in one of the jars.

The poisoned olives, Mr. O'Brien said, have a peculiar odor which should be easily detected.

He also stated that the olives usually are soft and succulent.

Case in Montana
Attention to the olives was attracted by a case of botulism poisoning at Kalispell, Montana, which was investigated by the federal authorities, according to Mr. O'Brien.

The investigation, he said, disclosed that three brands of California packed olives were involved. The brands are "Batavia," "Richmond," and "California."

The name of the California packed olives does not appear on the bottles, but the name of the distributor is "Batavia," and the name of the distributor is "California."

Mr. O'Brien said that the olives were packed in 1918 and thousands of bottles have been sold throughout the country.

He also stated that the olives were found to be infected with the bacillus in the bottles.

No Blame on Tacker
Mr. O'Brien said that, no blame was attached to the tacker, wholesaler, or retailer of the olives.

The germ which causes botulism poisoning was first discovered in 1895 in ham. Federal investigation have since disclosed that there are two types of the deadly bacillus, the olive type and the cheese type. It also appears in cattle, fowls and it was investigation of horse poisoning during the war that led to isolation of the germ and discovery of a serum which if used in time is said to avert death.

Housewives are instructed to return ripe stuffed olives of the brands named to their grocers, unopened, and state inspectors will take up the stock and destroy it.

The olives were distributed by Sprague and Warner and company of Chicago. Major A. A. Sprague, head of the federal fat price commission for Illinois.

Mr. O'Brien in his statement praised the firm for help given in tracing the olives.

bushels of potatoes and other farm produce cannot be marketed in this vicinity until the snow is melted.
In this market, potatoes will con-

Roads in the Lake Superior country are almost impassable and in the winter. Teams meeting on a country highway are obliged to stop until at least one team is unhitched and driven out into the drifts and the sled dragged after the team. Many farmers walked long distances to the postoffices and villages to stores.

GERMANS START TRIAL OF ALLEGED WAR CRIMINALS

(By Associated Press.)
Berlin, Feb. 21.—Preliminary proceedings in a number of cases of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war have begun today in the imperial court. The court is composed of judges and lay members.
The first case is that of a German doctor, Dr. Schiller, minister of justice, told the representative of the press that accused persons would be tried at Leipzig by a court consisting of the customary seven judges.

Germans witnesses will be heard in accordance with the prescriptions of criminal trial regulations and witnesses will be examined abroad if they do not care to come to Germany.
It was indicated a German examining magistrate would go to other countries to be present at the taking of evidence.

Accused persons who do not respond to the summons to appear before the court will be arrested. On the principle that each accused would necessarily have to be tried individually, Dr. Schiller entered a protest against the fact that the government regarded it an affair of honor to punish those really guilty.
The government was not obeying the order of the court, he said, but was fulfilling the requirements of its own feeling of what was just, he said.

lenging the attitude of each presidential turalists consider of paramount importance.

USE OF GERMAN LINERS IN FOREIGN ROUTES IS URGED

RECONSTRUCTION OF SHIPS AND OPERATION BY U. S. PROPOSED

TO PLY OCEANS

Vessels Requisitioned for Trade to S. America, Europe, and Orient.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, Feb. 21.—Reconstruction of the former German liners and their operation by the government in regular routes to South America, Europe, and the Orient, was urged today by Chairman of the committee on commerce in reporting to the senate a bill approved by the committee prohibiting the sale of the craft until congress has adopted permanent shipping legislation.

"These ships," the committee reported on the bill, "are urgently needed in our foreign commerce. If the government continues to own these ships the service desired can and will be maintained. This assurance will develop business and business agencies and doubtless soon will put the service upon a paying basis. The maintenance of the ships disposed of for all their cost if not more, under such restrictions and upon such terms as will not only insure the maintenance of the ships but their continuance under our flag."

Gives Time to Study Bill

Senator Jones said he had intended to ask for consideration of the bill today but would withhold the request until next week. He said the bill proposed international agreement regarding German shipping sent to the senate yesterday by President Wilson. "If this government must turn over any amount it receives over and above the amount of its submarine losses, it should be for the benefit of the people of this country."

MADAME IN CITY TO SEE YANK WHOM SHE SHELTERED IN PARIS

As a result of the Yanks going overseas to take up the fight in behalf of weakened France, there have been many firm bonds of friendship formed between French families and American youths. Most of these have come from the sincere appreciation of the French by the French for the aid rendered by the United States troops.

Many of these friendships were made back to their native land and have been kept alive only through the tedious slow channels of the mail.
But perhaps the firmest of all is that formed by C. E. Cavette, resident on Main street, this city, and employed at the Samson plant.

Madame Cavette, herself of French descent, today had the keen pleasure of renewing his friendship with Madame L. Chouillou of Paris. On her way to Paris, she had been visiting western Canada, she made it a point to pass through Janesville so that she could once more say, "bon jour," to her friend. She expects to remain here a few days.

When Cavette was across with the United States forces, he was sent to Paris. He was stationed with his regiment in the city. He met Madame Cavette, who became so interested in him that she took him into her home. He stayed with her and his children at her beautiful chateau in Paris.

This is said to be the first instance of its kind of a French woman adopting an American youth as a result of the war and also the first instance of a French woman adopting a foreigner as a son.

Raisin Brandy Found in Raid on Kitchen Still

(By Associated Press.)
Shaboygan, Feb. 21.—A special agent of the internal revenue department, with the assistance of detectives from the local police station, made a raid on the saloon of Anton Bosse in this city last night, finding under arrest and confiscated a kitchen still with which he is alleged to have been making raisin brandy for sale.

Several hundred gallons of what the authorities called "brandy" were found in the saloon. The brandy was state unexcise brandy. In large hogheads when the plant was raided, according to the police.

A copper still with condensing "worms" and a pot still were found in the saloon. The condensation was made, were confiscated and brought with Bosse to the police station.

A portion of the liquor was held for evidence in the case, while the "mash" was spoiled by pouring kerosene over it.

WILSON'S ANXIETY OVER TURKISH POLICY PRECEDED ADRIATIC

Paris, Feb. 21.—John W. Davis, American ambassador to Great Britain, spoke in London last night of "certain instructions" he had received from President Wilson, although the president's note to the supreme council in this city last night arrived at the British capital says "Pettinax," political editor of the Echo de Paris.

Wilson's anxiety to follow the course of events," he writes, "it should be said the note received by the council from President Wilson last night was in answer to a statement sent to the state department in Washington on January 24 by Earl Curzon, British secretary of state for foreign affairs. Hugh C.
Wallace, American ambassador to France, attended meetings of the supreme council in this city last night and in the name of his government expressed formal reservations in regard to the demand sent to Belgrade on January 20, 1919, to demand the evacuation of the Balkans. He spoke as much in regard to Turkey as the Adriatic, he said: 'You are going much too far and too fast. President Wilson cannot follow you.'

"Earl Curzon then, drafted his note which was intended to calm the American anxiety. He said that the greatest defence would be shown his views, and that Ambassador Wallace would be kept fully informed of all developments. After three weeks of patient waiting President Wilson felt these soft words would be enough to calm the American anxiety. February 13 was not a "bolt from the blue."

"Knowledge of certain facts may also throw light on Mr. Wilson's policy. It is known that the president formally asked the peace conference to postpone drafting the Turkish treaty until spring. He hoped if the conference agreed to his demand he would be able to join in the Turkish treaty. The conference refused to do so. The result was that Mr. Wilson, in a matter all that he had elaborated without him. In one of the last meetings of the supreme council, it was decided that before the treaty would be submitted to the president it would be submitted to the cabinet for their approval to our great associate."

"What will be done? In whatever way one looks at it the work of the peace conference seems more or less threatened as a word from across the Atlantic may reduce to nothing the important conversations which have been going on. The arrival of Premier Millerand in London, Sunday night, will mark a decisive moment."

ENTHUSIASM HIGH AMONG MEMBERS OF BETTER STOCK CLUBS

Another boost for pure-bred livestock in Rock county was given this evening at the annual meeting of the Rock County Boys' and Girls' Pig club, which was attended by more than 125 boys, girls, and their parents. Dinner was served in the Methodist church at 12:30 o'clock by some of the mothers.

Congratulations to the boys and girls for the work done during the past year and what was expected of them for the coming year was the keyword of speeches. County Agent R. T. Glasco, acting as toastmaster, presented Earl Cooper, assistant secretary of the boys' and girls' clubs of the state, who said of the work be-done by them.

He spoke of the 4-H club, which has members in all parts of the state.
This club is for the purpose of improving livestock. All members of the pig club belong to this club and were given pins this afternoon. They were given a certificate of membership and a much livestock. The 4-H stand for Head, Hand, Heart and Honesty.

Smith, of the Merchants and Savings Bank, which is helping to further the livestock raising by loaning the boys and girls the money with which to get a start, congratulated members on the enthusiastic spirit shown.

The club is a sheep as well as a pig club and more efforts will be made during the coming year to further sheep raising. The Rock County Savings and Trust company will help increase the boys and girls in the sheep raising, as the other bank does in pig raising. Frank M. Jackson, president of the bank, talked on this matter.

There were many more at the luncheon today than at the one given a year ago, and if the enthusiasm for sheep raising is continued, the coming year should be the most successful one so far.

INDIAN TESTIFIES IN NEWBERRY TRIAL

(By Associated Press.)
Grand Rapids, Feb. 21.—James T.
Fisher, Laurium, a defendant in the

to make his testimony before the member of the grand jury, related the story, saying Fisher had acknowledged that he had traveled the special grand jury, $100,000,000 per copper country by way of Detroit.

Potts quoted Fisher as saying that he had said that James Newberry's campaign manager, and Mc-went to "find out what line of testimony to make before the grand jury."

Through ability of Supt. H. A.
Griffey of the city water works, the Late in November, Mr. Griffey made estimates of the amount of material which would be needed for the 1920 program. A special meeting of the board of public works was called by the mayor and the order placed in at the $61 price. A few days later the price jumped several dollars and has been climbing ever since.

Nearly three miles of mains have been ordered. Some of the shipment of 5,900 feet of 16-inch main, 2,600

Voice of the People

Editor of Gazette: I give my opinion in regard to the new police patrol ambulance. I read in the Gazette some time ago that the mayor and other officials suggest a fee be paid for the use of the ambulance. I, and perhaps many of our citizens, take great pride in same, but do not think it just to pay for the use of it. You could not call it the city's ambulance, but merely a hired vehicle for the conveying of people to and from the hospital. I did always think that police protection, fire protection, ambulance service, and many others not mentioned, were paid by the citizens from the taxes paid by the citizens.

A TAXPAYER.

Editor of Gazette: May I explain something please about the 14-year-old boy? He was not disorderly when the mayor threw him out of the foyer of the theater. Why did not our mayor do the same to some of the adults who did just what the boy did? If I were better acquainted in your city I could produce witnesses to bear me out in my statements when I say the boy was not guilty of disorderly conduct. This is the first town we heard of where the thing is done.

As to Mrs. Gazette Reader, thank you very kindly for your advice, which is not needed. I am aware that many enjoy giving it and that it is about the only thing free these days of H. C. L. I challenge you to produce from your many children a boy who can show a better record for good behavior. I assure you the boy in question will come out 100 percent.

As for the children raised 40 and 50 years ago, I am sure the present day products are as good and in many instances superior. Too much education? There are few children of today who can neither read nor write—can you show as small a percentage among those raised 40 or 50 years ago? I fail to see what education is to be despised and I assure you some of us are proud to make companions of our sons so they do not care to "run free too much."

Since this boy was accompanied by his mother and not "running free," I defy anyone to say he was disorderly and under the circumstances would you thank any one who corrected him or would you be "hot under the collar?" As to the "cursing and abusive language on the school grounds, etc.," where do they learn it originally? From those raised 40 or 50 years ago.

As for the 14-year-old boy under discussion, he has many friends in your city that will vouch for his good behavior. The young get acquainted easily. He is a Boy Scout and a member of the Baptist Sunday school and I am proud to say all-American and uses no profane language.

ANOTHER READER.

To the Editor: You say in your Wednesday's issue that the operators of billiard and pool rooms and bowling alleys may open up the coming Sunday subject to a complaint and fine, if complaints are made.

The city attorney says these matters are largely controlled by public opinion. Now who is going to be the judge of public opinion? Certainly not Mayor Welch, J. D. Dulin and W. J. Hill. It seems to me public opinion was voiced when the law was placed in our statutes, and cannot be reversed until the law is revoked.

City Attorney Cunningham reminded the mayor and councilmen of their oath of office in which they swore to support the constitution and laws of the state. Now the citizens of Janesville look to them to do as they promised.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

What Shall I Be?

Answered for Girls

A HOTEL MANAGER
By R. S. Alexander

"Front! Show this gentleman into a room, office, and job as a hotel manager."

How would you like to hear some hotel owner give the bell-boy the order and know that you were the gentleman? You will never hear it. Hotel managerships come as the result of hard consistent work.

Take an inventory of yourself before you go into the hotel business and see if you have the following assets:

1. Are you honest? There are more chances to be crooked in the hotel business than in any other business under the sun. If you simply can't keep your fingers off other people's property, stay out of the business.

2. Are you naturally rude or abrupt? Courtesy is the first requisite of the hotel man. The standing joke about the supercilious hotel clerk is a joke because courtesy is the thing most desired and expected in a hotel clerk. You'll find there is no group of business men as willing to give you your money's worth and a little more as the successful hotel men.

3. Have you the disposition to serve? When you go to a hotel the thing you may expect to be waited on by service. Of course, you want the bed soft and the food clean, but most of the service you demand is the personal service of the employees. If they give it grudgingly, you won't go back if you can avoid it.

4. Are you ugly? Good looks count in this business. Nothing so disgusting as a person, as to be waited on by some one whose physical appearance is repulsive. This does not mean that you have to take a beauty prize to break into the hotel business, but it does mean that you must look neat and attractive. First impressions count.

Most persons in the hotel business break in by the bell-boy route. If you are a little older and have some skill at figures or with a pen, you may be put in the auditing room or in charge of handling the keys. You can count on it though you will have to start at the bottom and work up.

You can get further information by writing to one of the big hotels or to one of the magazines published for hotel men. You can get the names and addresses of such magazines from your local hotel manager.

What Shall I Be?

Answered for Boys

THE STATISTICIAN
By Caroline M. Weidrich

"Well, daughter, I've at last found a position that will be just the thing for you," said Dr. Baird one night at the dinner table. "How would you like to be our Assistant Hospital Statistician?"

"My father, I don't even know what a statistician is."

"Many people have no idea of the real meaning of the profession. Just forget about that word, statistician, for a moment. What we need is a girl with mathematical ability. She must be able to work with figures and she must learn to compare the facts and figures of this year with those of last year by making charts and writing reports."

"A practical way to begin in any such line of work would be as an understudy, or statistical clerk in an office, where one first learns the business. Your first duty as a Hospital Statistician would be an understanding of medical terms in order to do intelligently."

"But father, I would need some special training."

"Not many employed as statisticians have had the training necessary to become a real success. Those who appreciate this need may take courses in statistical methods in the financial departments of all our leading universities. However, the demands of different houses upon their various statistical departments are so varied that it would be impossible to map out a course of study to fit one exactly for every position desired. Our present statistician is a college graduate. She started in a doctor's office and later attended school at the University of Pennsylvania where she studied Medical Statistics. Her annual salary is $2,500."

"During the war the need for women statisticians was higher than ever before. Women were employed by the Food Administration, the U. S. C. A., banks, large business houses and, in fact every line of industry. A salary of $3,000 was not unheard of."

"That salary sounds good to me and I believe you when you say that it is possible for a girl to work up to a high position just as well as any man. I'll start tomorrow as Assistant Hospital Statistician."

"Now, Dorothy, if there are four flies on a table and I kill one with a fly-swatter, how many are left?"

"One," replied Dot, "the dead one."

Social Outlook in Spain Shows Little Improvement

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madrid, Feb. 21.—Little improvement is seen in the social outlook throughout Spain. At Huesca, stone masons have struck. The National Federation of Railwaymen, with headquarters in this city, is negotiating with other railroad associations with a view to making a general strike effective March 1.

Airplanes to Be Used in Locating Schools of Fish

Washington, Feb. 21.—Profiting by war experience in the use of seaplanes to locate submerged submarines, the bureau of fisheries plans to use aircraft in aiding tuna and sardine fishermen in finding schools of fish. The bureau announced today that recent experiments with naval seaplanes off the California coast have shown the possibilities of "fishing with planes."

JUBALAND: THE DIXIE LAND OF AMERICA.

"Jubaland is not a musical comedy name for Dixie, but a portion of British East Africa which may be joined to Italian Somaliland as the outcome of amicable negotiations between Great Britain and Italy, news dispatches state," says the National Geographic society in a bulletin issued today from its Washington headquarters.

"Few other undeveloped regions on that vast continent hold such agricultural opportunities for individuals or companies which can handle native labor as do the vast uncultivated plains on which rubber, cotton and tobacco can be grown.

"Jubaland now is the northernmost part of British East Africa lying west of the Juba river. Few white men have penetrated the fastnesses of this country which touches Abyssinia on the north, Uganda on the west, and Italian Somaliland on the east. Its southern portion fringes the equator. With the exception of the Juba there are no navigable streams of note leading inland.

"The Juba river, about the length of our own Colorado river, can be used for commercial navigation about 400 miles from its mouth. In its valley, where irrigation is practiced on a naturally fertile soil, already there are continuous fields of maize, millet, plantain, semsem, tobacco and cotton. Near the lower portion of the river densely populated areas alternate with forests.

"Within Jubaland's territory, only a little less in area than Italy, perhaps 250,000 members of the Somali and Galla tribes live. The Gallas are of a high physical quality. They are dark brown in color, are generally tall and well-formed, and their deep-sunk, lively eyes give them a keen, intelligent look. They are warlike nomads and roam with their herds of camels, ponies, cows and fat-tailed sheep over the grassy uplands of their country. Within recent years the Somali, who live farther to the north, have gradually pushed into the Galla country and are sending its people southward and westward. The Gallas are hospitable, brave in battle and keen in trading.

"Their women enjoy an exceptional amount of freedom as compared with that given the women of most African tribes. They may even reject an undesirable suitor. Both men and women usually wear a mantle of coarse cotton, and make up for the lack in the number of their garments by adorning themselves with ornaments of brass and iron. The men wear necklaces of the brighter metal, leaving the fashion of armlets and anklets of more inconspicuous substances to women.

"This land of promise is not an unpleasant place to live. The lowlands are hot, but a short distance back from the shores of the Indian Ocean the land begins to rise gradually until it reaches an elevation of between 4,500 and 6,000 feet, when it stretches out into a rolling plateau, with valuable forest areas. In this section the climate is temperate, with heavy rains during our spring and fall months. The crops are approximately the same as those we find in our own country.

"Kismayu is the capital of Jubaland. It is a town of about 3,000 inhabitants a few miles from the mouth of the Juba and carries on a brisk trade with the interior."

WOMEN VOTERS' THINKING.

What distinguishes the League of Women Voters, which met in Chicago recently and formulated a platform, is that it is less busied with politics than with constructive suggestions to improve the conditions of living. The women are not concerned with getting themselves elected to office. They are apparently not much concerned with who is elected to any office, if they can obtain popular support for their program to reduce the cost of living and improve working conditions of women in industry. How long they may be able to maintain this aloofness and preserve their ranks from party discord is problematical, but for the moment it promises to serve their purpose well.

New movements have usually sought success by formation of new political parties to embody their platforms. Usually, also, such movements have failed. With one or two notable exceptions, the great changes in American life have been accomplished through the existing great political parties. Women are profiting by this experience. Their own cause triumphed when republicans and democrats entered eager competition to espouse it. They now hope to stimulate similar competition equally profitable to them.

The League of Women Voters is thinking. Consequently it has a message. It is probable that the organization will go farther in its proposals than most citizens will care to follow, but in presenting their platform free of partisan prejudices, women are certain of receiving for it respectful and unbiased consideration.

THE POWER OF EXAMPLE.

A man who tried to reduce the cost of living by keeping hens was bitterly disappointed at the small size of the eggs they laid. He hung an ostrich egg in the hen house. Underneath it he placed a card with the words: "Keep your eye on this and do your best."

Example is the greatest motive force of today. Men and women are imitative animals. They do things because they see others do them.

"Follow your leader" is one of life's greatest gueses.

JUST FOLKS

WAGES.

The man stands at his task by day,
And this is what he draws for pay.
The prattle of his babes at night,
Their shouts of innocent delight,
Their fond caresses, and the bliss
Of every little hug and kiss.

Above the clang of heavy things
He hears the song the kettle sings;
Beyond the smoke and grime and oil
That mark his daily round of toil,
He sees his little home aglow
With every joy that man may know.

Think you his wages can be told
In coins of silver and of gold?
Think you he stands the heat and smoke
Of molten steel and smoldering coke For merely minted money, which Alone can never make him rich?

Al, no! The man is working there For treasures far beyond compare!
And though his pay in dollars comes,
His soul translates it into drums,
And dresses, and a thousand toys
Which he can give his girls and boys.

If he has vision he can see The happy years which are to be,
Can see beyond his hours of care
The glories which his own shall share;
And in their love and laughter gay
The true man earns and counts his pay.

Pioneers are few and followers are many. It is always easier to follow a trail than to blaze it.

There are big men doing things in a big, clean way upon whom it is a constant inspiration to keep an eye, and whose example spurs us to do our best.

But our tendency to imitate may lead us astray if the example chosen is not worthy. No man ever landed in the penitentiary entirely through his own fault. His downfall was caused by another crook whose example encouraged him to believe he could be crooked himself and get away with it.

Similarly the best in us is encouraged and developed by seeing the good in others. Although there are multitudes of followers and only comparatively few big leaders, every man and woman is an example to someone else. The bad we do is dragging others down and the good we achieve is lifting others up.

The hen cannot lay an egg as big as the ostrich's, but she is to be commended for trying. Supreme goodness may not be possible for any of us, but the more we imitate it the better it will be for us and for the world.

The rat trap was recently declared to be the one article of commerce that has not greatly advanced in price, but just wait until its possibilities are discovered in catching the bolshevik!

The presentation to Field museum in Chicago of two beer mugs by a retired saloonist may be taken as an assurance of a praiseworthy desire to enlighten future generations in regard to the habits of the past.

In connection with the suggestion that the Dutch might intern the former kaiser on an island in the East Indies, it may be noted that tidal waves have been sweeping over islands in that region.

In their negotiations with Germany concerning the war criminals the allies give evidence that they are familiar with the story of Mahomet.

Von Hindenburg is now wanted for destruction of property. The next charge against Count Hohenzollern may be malicious mischief.

Battle Over Free Seed

By FREDERIC J. HAZARD, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The time honored congressional custom of winning the voters' approval by generous donations of every sort, and by the irrepressible Mr. Blanton of Texas, opened fire on the $300,000 seed item in the agriculture appropriation bill.

He charged that his honorable colleagues were hawking their constituents by selling them the seed as a gift, when in reality they were being paid for by taxes and the increased cost of living.

"The farmers of this country," he shouted, "would rather have their taxes cut, than to receive a '35 cent package of seed, that they don't want and can't use, from their senator or congressman."

For a few minutes it looked as though the seeds were doomed, but when the roll call was taken, at Mr. Blanton's request, enough votes were mustered to defeat the amendment striking the item from the appropriation bill. The vote stood 130 to 100.

Some of Mr. Blanton's low congressmen voting with him, probably for the first time in their lives.

Colleagues of the Texas congressman declare in rebuttal of his argument that the farmers are not the ones benefited by the seed distribution, the greater number of the packages going to the back yard gardener who can not purchase his seed in the bulk the farmer needs.

They declared that the seeds only cost the United States a few cents apiece, and that the farmer gets a trifling over three and a half cents a package, including the cost of purchasing them, putting them in packages and mailing them to the farmer.

Including the cost of the extra clerks the senator or congressman must employ to handle the packages, the same grade of seed, if purchased by the gardener or small farmer, would cost him about 25 cents a package, and mailing the same grade of seed furnished by the government.

The seeds, it was stated, are the best that can be purchased in the United States, and, before their distribution, are thoroughly tested and approved by government experts for their purity and vitality.

Members of the house stated that not infrequently the seed is sent to those who had no intention of using it. Mr. Blanton objected that would not utilize the small amount of ground at their command, thus increasing only in a slight degree the food production of the country, and reducing the cost of living for the amateur agriculturist.

A congressman from the heart of New York City, where the majority of the voters' means are extremely limited, declared that he could use only a few packages of the 3,000 allotted to him, and twice that amount if he could secure it.

"I am too poor to afford even the 25 cents of my people the seed," he said, "to purchase similar seeds, but when they receive the stuff free are able to grow the few fresh vegetables their families provide for the summer, and sometimes are able to put up a few cans for winter."

His contention that it is the back yard or window box gardener who uses the government seed is borne out by the fact that the kinds of seeds for which there are the greatest demands are those for small gardens, such as peas, beans, corn, lettuce and radishes. Tomatoes, too, have their vogue, but are not as popular as the other five. It will be noticed that of the five, three are staples and two are what are known as appetizers.

The late Sen. Sullivan, New York, once wrote to the head of the bureau of plant industry, and requested that his entire allotment be composed of beans.

"My constituents," he said, "seem to like them above all other things. They must live on beans. Every letter I get for several packages, and if I sent all that are requested, the whole city of New York would be feasting on beans for the next five years."

According to the law, each senator and congressman is allotted 18,000 packages of vegetable and two thousand of flower seed, but many of them ask that their flower allotment be changed to vegetables, which is done if the supply at the bureau of plant industry will permit.

The few congressmen who do not use their entire allotment are begged by requests from their colleagues that their extra supply be turned over to them. Some members of both houses have other means of securing an extra supply, which they refuse to divulge for fear others will learn their methods and imitate them.

Five packages in each of the 18,000 packages the senators and congressmen receive contains five small packages of seed, such as are sold in grocery stores and seed houses. This year the entire output of the department was over 12,000,000 packages, each containing five packets, bringing the total up to 60,000,000 packets.

Last year the output was some millions short, each senator and congressman receiving only 14,000 packages of vegetables, and 1,000 of flowers, but the demand was so great and the number of their constituents who were disappointed in not obtaining any of the seed was so large that the appropriation for the purchasing and handling of the supply was increased to the present figure.

The increased demand, the members believe, was partly due to the extensive propaganda, the food and nutrition carried on, encouraging the people to increase the food supply of the country as well as to preserve it in the apartment houses grew their fresh vegetables in window boxes, and those having any ground at all, even the tiniest of plots, felt it their patriotic duty to put this ground under cultivation and produce all the food stuff they possibly could.

Thousands of letters are received each season by every member of congress asking for such and such vegetable seeds. The season really opens before Congress convenes. When the members begin receiving appeals from their constituents in the far south, and does not end until the last day of April when the last package of seed is finally shipped out of the house and senate office buildings.

The individual distribution of the seed is not the only means by which the members increase the food production, and incidentally their own popularity. Thousands of packages are sent to newspapers in small towns, or placed in grocery stores in small communities, with the request to help themselves with Mr. Senator's or Mr. Congressman's compliments.

This latter practice came in for a sharp attack by Mr. Blanton who charged that the seed was being used for campaign purposes by the members, and not going to the hands of persons who really need them.

He referred caustically to the well known practice of shipping the seed to political leaders in various states, and demanded that the government, if the seed distribution was to remain, "take the politics out of it" and let the department of agriculture handle it.

Already the department receives thousands of requests for seeds which it has no authority to give, and no one to write to his senator or congressman. Practically the entire output is distributed through the house and senate offices, and is sent out from the big warehouse where they are stored waiting for the congressional order for their distribution.

The department of agriculture, which handles the seed business of congress, and which is likewise the governmental agency which devotes itself exclusively to a study of the soil, is strongly opposed to this congressional distribution of seed. It considers the appropriation for the seed almost wholly wasted. It states that the constituent would be better served if he were given a quarter of an acre of good soil. It maintains the fact that, while congress appropriates, those for the seed would eventually put tens of millions of dollars into the national treasury as being eliminated or cut to the bone.

Eugene O'Brien further proves his right to be called the perfect lover. In a romance that starts in Greenwich Village, where the very atmosphere breathes love, Mr. O'Brien is the center of this appealing little drama. The beautiful Lucy Cotton renders him capable support.

Which is greater—love or fame? The love of Stewart Grant and Hedda Bruce was something divinely sacred. But little whisperings of discontent, planted by a designing woman, brought about a separation, and then came the real test, which would win? See Eugene O'Brien, the perfect lover, in his new romance. He answers the question, and we believe, to your entire satisfaction.

THEY LIKE "OH, BABY!"
Press reports from the cities recently visited by "Oh Baby" speak in highest terms of the extravaganza. Much stress is laid on the cleanliness of the production as a whole and the speed of its performance. No little space is devoted to the personal charms of the members of the famous Peach Chorus while the magnificence of the production receives considerable attention. Information from other sources likewise bear out the assertion of the show management that "Oh Baby" is one of the best bets of the show year. All of which is reflected in the advance sale of the production as a whole and the speed of its performance. ## "Dad" Would Cheer for This One

A Seven-Room Bungalow of Original Design

Dad's cigar smoke can't get into the living room curtains because he'll do his smoking in the big cozy den.

The den, as well as the bedrooms and bath, are away from the rest of the rooms. This seven-room bungalow embodies many unusual and desirable features.

There is a "perfectly dear" little breakfast room. The living room and dining room are unusually large.

The porch extends nearly around two sides. Big Sister can entertain her young man on summer evenings without interfering with the rest of the family.

The ground space of the dwelling occupies 42x58 feet. Plan can easily be altered to include a double closet, by eliminating the interior entrance to basement.

The merchants on this page will cooperate with you in every way possible—they will take care of your home problems—and are ready to serve you at all times.

Winter Building Safe and Practicable

The cost of delay is too high to justify postponing the erection of a new home, factory or extension just because of winter. It's unnecessary, too, to suffer this loss.

Through years of practice on thousands of buildings, resourceful contractors have developed simple methods that make winter building safe and practicable.

This means that if you are ready, you can order work started now. Or, it means that if you're only thinking of building you can go ahead now with your plans and have work started as soon as you say the word.

Why wait till next spring to build when buildings are so badly needed and when winter building is safe and practicable, gives you the profits or comforts of earlier use, keeps building money active and avoids the high cost of delay?

We'll be glad to send you or your contractor a copy of the booklet "Concreting in Cold Weather," which shows the simple, inexpensive precautions needed to make winter building safe.
